BAY

COALITION

2012 ANNUAL REPORT

FROM THE PRESIDENT AND CHAIR

The Buzzards Bay Coalition's 25th year found us right where our founders would have wanted us: deep in the trenches working to protect and restore this ever-magical but increasingly threatened Bay and its watershed. And thanks to the outstanding support of you – our members and friends – we think they'd be proud of the scale and depth of the Coalition's programs and accomplishments. While the challenges facing Buzzards Bay – most importantly nitrogen pollution – are increasing, one critical fact remains: the threats to our region's waters and lands are primarily local. They are within our power to ignore or tackle, to accept or change. That fact more than any other keeps us excited and empowered in our work. It's also at the core of the Coalition's strength and effectiveness.

It took generations to create the land development patterns that have led to the overpollution of our Bay and its harbors with nitrogen. And the fix – changes in town infrastructure, financing, and improved planning – will take another generation for Bay communities to fully absorb.

But like the global threat of climate change, ignoring our local nitrogen problem and avoiding the hard work ahead will only make restoration more difficult, more expensive and potentially less successful.

So the time to act is now. And that is what the Coalition is doing through legal action, advocacy with public officials, and pushing for quicker delivery of sound science and concrete cleanup. Our major federal lawsuits against the U.S. EPA are forcing officials to deal with septic systems on Cape Cod; our legal challenge and eventual Settlement Agreement with the town of Falmouth and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection put West Falmouth Harbor, after more than a decade of pressure, on a clear path to recovery; and our watchdogging of long-delayed Massachusetts Estuaries Project reports for harbors from Dartmouth to Wareham all reflect the significant investments we've made in aggressive advocacy this past year.

But legal advocacy is only one facet of our strategy. Proactive land conservation to acquire the watershed's most important forests and wetlands is critical – both for preserving natural, nitrogen-absorbing landscapes and for maintaining healthy river and coastal ecosystems for wildlife and fish. To that end, we permanently preserved another 470 acres in 2012. These lands – clustered around the Bay's most important rivers – bring the total amount of land we've saved to 6,250 acres since we began this program in 1998.

2012 also saw dramatic growth in our work to inspire, excite and engage many, many more people in Bay protection. Saving Buzzards Bay is multigenerational work and the victories of today will need watchdogging tomorrow. Joining us in this effort are the more than 4,000 area youth who participated in our year-round field education programs, the 1,000 people who came out for the Buzzards Bay Film Festival, and the hundreds that flexed their muscle and passion in outdoor events like our Swim and Watershed Ride that celebrate everyone's right to a clean environment.

The pages of this Annual Report provide an all-too-short glimpse into the daily work of our talented staff, dedicated Board and tireless volunteers. But the most important players are you – our growing family of members and supporters – who make it all possible. You continue to amaze us with your generosity, your enthusiastic impatience for more action, and most importantly, your vision for the future of our local environment. We're excited for the work ahead. Thank you!

ISSUE HIGHLIGHT:

Why is New Bedford Harbor getting one of the worst cleanups in America?

No corner of Buzzards Bay has suffered more damage than New Bedford Harbor. It is the Bay's largest urban waterway, home to more than one hundred thousand residents and the United States' richest commercial fishing port. It is also heavily contaminated with cancer-causing toxins called PCBs, ongoing raw sewage discharges, and too much nitrogen.

For decades, toxic pollution in particular has deprived the New Bedford community of its greatest natural asset: its Harbor. Now, after years of waiting, New Bedford Harbor still isn't getting the cleanup it deserves.

The Coalition has always been an active advocate for the Harbor, but we significantly ramped up our efforts in October 2012, when the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced an inadequate $366 million settlement with AVX Corporation, the largest company responsible for the Harbor's PCB pollution. Although this figure sounds like a lot of money, the settlement is a bad deal for the New Bedford community.

Under the settlement – a fixed amount that allows AVX to walk away forever – the EPA will be locked into cleanup choices that put cost savings ahead of harbor health and the public good. New Bedford Harbor is slated to receive one of the worst PCB cleanups of its kind in America, with up to fifty times more toxic pollution left behind than in similar waterway cleanups.

In response, we mobilized more than a dozen elected officials and over 2,000 community members to join our call for a full cleanup of New Bedford Harbor. The settlement comes at a critical point for the Harbor, where the tide is turning for a long-neglected waterway. Along its shores, developers are transforming old factories into new waterfront loft homes. Abandoned spaces are being re-imagined as public parks where families can enjoy nature, right in their own urban backyard. Active citizens row the Harbor's waters, taking back a waterway that residents have been robbed of for far too long.

The New Bedford community deserves a Harbor cleanup that will protect the health of its residents, provide a safe home for fish and wildlife, and preserve its coastal heritage for future generations. That vision for the future can – and will – be a reality if we fight today for a full cleanup.

Under the EPA's cleanup plan, these signs may never come down.

BAYKEEPER® ADVOCACY

On July 30, 2012, as the R/V Baykeeper® cruised towards its monitoring station in Mark's Cove in Wareham, Coalition Senior Attorney Korrin Petersen noticed the water taking on a murky, rusty color. She snapped a picture and shared it with the Coalition's science staff, who agreed that this was likely the season's first reported sighting of "rusty tide": an algae bloom caused by nitrogen pollution and warm water. 2012 was the eighth straight year that rusty tide was reported in Buzzards Bay, but the first time it was seen as early as July. By the end of the summer, rusty tide sightings were reported in towns from Dartmouth to Falmouth, covering more of the Bay than ever before.

The fact that rusty tide is becoming routine and widespread is more evidence of the serious threat that nitrogen pollution poses in Buzzards Bay. The severity of the problem is well-documented by over twenty years of comprehensive water quality data collected through our Baywatchers program. The breadth and depth of that program earned it a 2012 Environmental Merit Award from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). And it is helping us begin to turn the tide on nitrogen as public awareness and concern about the issue grows.

Baywatchers data laid the foundation for a major victory for clean water in West Falmouth. For over a decade, concerned citizens have watched their harbor become choked with algae. Too much nitrogen was flowing into the harbor, and the biggest culprit was the Falmouth Wastewater Treatment Plant. In July, the Coalition initiated legal action and ultimately reached a landmark legal settlement with the town of Falmouth and the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP) to limit the amount of nitrogen that reaches the Harbor.

The victory in West Falmouth Harbor was possible because of a completed cleanup study that outlined the amount of nitrogen a healthy harbor can handle. Many other Buzzards Bay harbors and coves are not so lucky. Five of the Bay's estuaries – the Wareham River, Slocums River, Apponagansett Bay, New Bedford Harbor, and Nasketucket Bay – have been waiting as long as nine years for final nitrogen pollution studies to be released by the Massachusetts Estuaries Project at UMass Dartmouth. In May, the Coalition reached an agreement with MassDEP and UMass Dartmouth to expedite final reports for those critical estuaries within one year.

As we work harbor by harbor, we also continue to press for regional solutions to clean up coastal waters. Our lawsuits against the EPA to update a regional action plan for cleaning up Cape Cod's waters moved into active litigation, as did a companion suit demanding the agency take action to reduce septic system pollution.

Although septic systems are the largest source of nitrogen pollution Bay-wide, the Buzzards Bay watershed is also the country's largest coastal cranberry producer. We have partnered with the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers Association, the Marine Biological Laboratory, the UMass Cranberry Experiment Station and the town of Carver in an important multi-year collaborative effort to research the impact of cranberry bogs on the Bay's health.

Lastly, we are carrying on with efforts to eliminate toxic pollution from all corners of the Bay. We ramped up our fight for a full cleanup of PCBs in New Bedford Harbor (see page one) and told the U.S. Coast Guard that its latest draft environmental assessment was "wholly insufficient" to protect the Bay from oil spills. Watch for more to come in 2013 on both of these issues that never seem to go away.

Coalition President Mark Rasmussen announces the landmark legal settlement for restoring West Falmouth Harbor.

With over 200 monitoring sites on and around the Bay, our Baywatchers program is the foundation of our work to restore clean water.

WATERSHED PROTECTION

Clean water doesn't just happen. The technology to produce clean water with filters, pumps, and chemicals can easily cost millions. Or you can do it the old-fashioned way: with a healthy, vibrant watershed that provides our communities with clean water for drinking, swimming and fishing. Protecting watersheds means protecting forests that absorb rainwater and recharge groundwater aquifers, wetlands that filter pollutants and reduce flooding, and plants and animals along our rivers and coastlines that naturally consume the nitrogen that fouls the Bay. In 2012, to ensure clean water for our communities and for Buzzards Bay, the Coalition permanently preserved 470 acres of land and advanced projects to restore rivers and wetlands across the region.

In Mattapoisett, we worked with the Mattapoisett Land Trust to permanently protect 300 acres of coastal forest, wetlands, and streams that flow into Pine Island Pond and outer Mattapoisett Harbor. In Dartmouth, the Coalition partnered with the Lloyd Center for the Environment and the Dartmouth Natural Resources Trust to protect 26 stunningly scenic acres along the Little River Estuary. And in preparation for what is the largest coastal land protection project underway in Massachusetts, the Coalition received a $2,000,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture towards the protection of 400 acres of land along Nasketucket Bay. In addition to protecting coastal land, the Coalition also helped residents in Falmouth advance a project to restore three salt ponds that have been overtaken by invasive species. This project will restore habitat and protect water quality on the Cape Cod coast.

Equally important to protecting coastal lands is the protection of the forests, wetlands and stream buffers along the Bay's tributaries. Along the Weweantic, Acushnet and Mattapoisett rivers in 2012, we protected land, advanced restoration and invited the public to explore these special places by opening three River Reserves. In Wareham, two major land protection projects formed the cornerstone of the Weweantic River Reserve. The Coalition protected 10 acres along the lower Weweantic, where the river meets the salty waters of Buzzards Bay. Further upstream in West Wareham, the Coalition, along with the Wareham Land Trust and the town of Wareham, protected 20 acres of pine and oak forest along the river.

Our Acushnet River Reserve, combining land conservation and river restoration along this urban waterway, more than doubled in size with 50 additional acres. This includes the 46 acre LaPalme Farm featuring newly-opened public trails leading to the river. In April, the restoration project just downstream at the Acushnet Sawmill received $1.2 million in funding from the New Bedford Harbor Trustee Council. With that funding, the Coalition hired ecological restoration scientists and engineers to manage the project, which will remove acres of pavement, restore wetlands, reestablish riverbank vegetation, and create public walking trails and a canoe launch. The Sawmill will open to the public in 2014.

In February, the Coalition added another 63 acres to our Mattapoisett River Reserve, expanding to over 350 acres of lush forests, freshwater wetlands – including a retired cranberry bog – and walking trails for the public to enjoy. Conserving this land protects a drinking water aquifer serving five Bay communities and provides an opportunity to restore a more natural flow of water into the Mattapoisett River and Buzzards Bay.

A picturesque section of the Weweantic River estuary that was conserved in 2012.

An underwater photograph showing a diver in a red jacket using a long-handled rake to clear seaweed from the seabed. The rake is made of wood and metal, and is positioned vertically in the water. The seabed is covered in green seaweed, and the water is clear with many small bubbles. The diver's face is visible at the top of the frame, looking down at the rake. The background shows a bright light source, likely the sun, creating a lens flare effect.

EDUCATION AND PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT

“Dear Buzzards Bay, thank you for letting boats float, letting fish swim, and letting us swim in you. I will pick up all the trash in you.” This was the message delivered by a nine-year-old New Bedford girl who attends afterschool at the YMCA. Like her peers, she initially knew very little about Buzzards Bay, but after five weeks exploring the Bay and its watershed with the Coalition, her appreciation – and her sense of responsibility – speaks for itself.

The spirit of appreciation and enjoyment of Buzzards Bay was the theme of 2012 as the Coalition celebrated our 25th anniversary. There is no better way to enjoy the Bay than getting outside, and in January, we launched monthly Bay Adventures for all ages led by Coalition staff. This included hikes that explored our river reserves on the Weweantic, Mattapoissett, and Acushnet rivers and conservation lands in Bourne, Acushnet, and Wareham. Other adventures included a tug boat tour of New Bedford Harbor and two trips to discover the remote beauty of Penikese Island.

To raise awareness of Buzzards Bay’s health, local legend Richard Wheeler kayaked the Bay’s entire shoreline – from the Head of the Westport River to Penikese Island – in May and June. Along the way, the 81-year-old Wareham resident met with over 500 schoolchildren and adults to share tales of the Bay’s beauty and importance. As he travelled, he carried a gift from each community to the next as a symbol of how the Bay connects us all.

The first-ever Buzzards Bay Film Festival brought together professional filmmakers and everyday citizens for a year-long celebration of Buzzards Bay.

The festival included the popular Cellphone Cinema contest, in which residents submitted short videos about the Bay they love all summer long. In November, the festival culminated with a three-day event that drew more than 1,000 people to screenings in Falmouth and New Bedford.

To close the year’s celebrations, we unveiled a new Bay-inspired public art installation at our Buzzards Bay Center in New Bedford. Designed by local artist John Magnan, Habitat is seven stainless steel sculptures that emulate eelgrass, one of the Bay’s most important – and nitrogen-threatened – habitats. The sculptures are an inspiring addition to our headquarters which, along with our Woods Hole Center, welcomed over 3,000 visitors last year.

We also continued to serve the region’s decision makers in government, business, and the non-profit sector with workshops focused on restoring the Bay’s natural resources. More than 50 participants dug into the details of restoring rivers and wetlands, hearing from experts and visiting restoration projects in Acushnet, Fairhaven, Falmouth and Wareham.

To develop the next generation of Bay stewards, we engaged more youth than ever before in hands-on, field-based exploration programs throughout the Bay and watershed. In partnership with schools and community groups from every community in the watershed, we connected over 4,000 youth with their local environment. Through our programs, children explored beaches in Falmouth, marshes in Wareham, forests in Mattapoissett, and went quahogging in New Bedford’s Clarks Cove. We also offered our first week-long Bay stewardship camp in partnership with YMCA Southcoast, where campers explored the Mattapoissett River from its headwaters to Buzzards Bay.

Our 2012 Decision Makers Workshops focused on restoring the Bay’s natural resources.

One hundred forty-seven cyclists raised $79,000 as they pedaled across Southeastern Massachusetts on October 14, 2012 during the Buzzards Bay Coalition's sixth annual Buzzards Bay Watershed Ride. Both the number of cyclists and the funds raised set new records for the event, which supports the Coalition's work to restore clean water, protect watershed lands and engage the community.

The first riders sped away from Horseneck Beach at 9:00 a.m., winding through Westport's picturesque coastal farmland, Padanaram village, New Bedford's working waterfront, the leafy Fairhaven bike path and Mattapoissett's rural roads before stopping for lunch at Eastover Farm in Rochester. There, cyclists completing a 35-mile route joined the Watershed Ride for its second leg past Wareham's cranberry bogs, over the Bourne Bridge and down Falmouth's Shining Sea Bikeway to end at beautiful Quisset Harbor in Woods Hole.

Cyclists cross the finish line of the sixth annual Watershed Ride in Quisset Harbor, Falmouth.

The Watershed Ride drew cyclists from across Southeastern Massachusetts, New England, and as far away as Florida, Indiana, South Carolina and Washington, D.C. Cyclists ranged in age from 12 to 74.

The top fundraiser was Andy van Dam of Barrington, R.I., who raised $3,500. The seventh annual Buzzards Bay Watershed Ride will be on Sunday October 6, 2013.

On May 22, 2012, the Buzzards Bay Coalition hosted its first ever Golf Outing in partnership with the Bay Club at Mattaposiatt, raising over $36,000 to fund clean water projects that reduce nitrogen pollution in New Bedford Harbor.

Sixty-eight golfers enjoyed 18 holes on this picturesque, 'International Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary Program' certified course followed by a cocktail party reception and auction at the Bay Club's Golf House Restaurant. The fundraiser included a live auction led by guest auctioneer, and former New Bedford Mayor, John Bullard. Citizens Bank served as a lead sponsor for the event.

TWENTY-FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING

The 24th Annual Meeting of the Buzzards Bay Coalition on May 10, 2012 at the Kittansett Club in Marion was a celebration of the organization's work in 2011 and the contributions of three community members who received Buzzards Bay Guardian Awards. The Coalition recognized Simone Bourgeois of New Bedford Public Schools Sea Lab for over 40 years of Bay stewardship education, Mack Phinney for his tremendous leadership on education and restoration projects in Wareham, and Dick Payne for leading a saltmarsh restoration project at Little Sippewisset Marsh in Falmouth. The Coalition also honored Dexter Cate and Rhea Teves-Cate as volunteers of the year for their work as educational docents, event volunteers, and office support.

The meeting concluded with a talk and discussion by Dr. Joe Costa, Executive Director of the Buzzards Bay National Estuary Program since 1989, who discussed how the effort to Save Buzzards Bay has changed over the past 25 years and the impact of today's expanding nitrogen pollution problem.

TREASURER'S REPORT

FISCAL YEAR 2012 (JULY 1, 2011-JUNE 30, 2012)

Having closed our very successful Campaign for Buzzards Bay in 2011, the Buzzards Bay Coalition is pleased to reflect a year of continued growth and financial stability.

As of June 30, 2012, the Coalition's net assets were $8.9 million, compared to pre-campaign net assets of $3.3 million thanks to a broad base of generous supporters. More important, with expanded infrastructure and endowment as well as new programs we have greatly increased the resources we bring to bear to tackle the challenges that face Buzzards Bay.

As expected following a capital campaign, overall donations decreased this year by about 30%, but support for operations continued a growth trend, with membership and annual fund income increasing by more than 35% from the prior year. The annual Buzzards Bay Swim and Watershed Ride events also generated 70% more revenue than the prior year, with the important added benefit of engaging hundreds of people with their irreplaceable Bay and watershed. Expenses for the year increased as well, a reflection of growth in our work to protect and restore Buzzards Bay.

The Coalition has a very capable and dedicated staff and most generous supporters. This is a very dynamic and exciting organization. I am very confident we will continue to be a strong force for the Bay's preservation.

Copies of audited financial statements are available upon request.
